Rippin' Rope Lacrosse Camps are designed for lacrosse players of all ages seeking off-season skill instruction. Using successful teaching methods, Rippin' Rope is entering its 8th year of operation. Players are exposed to instructors who have all, at minimum, played NCAA lacrosse, or coached at the high school level. Past staff have played for programs such as Delaware, Haverford, Princeton, Bucknell, Hofstra, Maryland, Hobart, VMI, Cornell, Wesley, etc.

Directed by Pete Duncan, current head boys lacrosse coach at Tatnall School, all Rippin' Rope Lacrosse Camps will feature coaches and guest speakers who have impressive credentials. Girls camps are directed by Melissa Whitehead, current head coach at Charter School of Wilmington. Guest speakers vary from professional and/or college players to leading lacrosse equipment manufacturers. Instruction throughout camp will focus on each position.
